Dear Donald:

My sister drew attention to the web site noted in the Daily Globe. I was drawn to your ordeal due to the fact that I experienced the Vargovich family firsthand. I grew up at 419 S. Norfolk St. directly across the street from the Vargovich clan.

I have personally witnessed Connie's fits of rage. One of my most vivid memories is when I was around 11 and she came over and challenged me to a fight one evening. I went outside and Connie and Kevin jumped me and both started punching me. Steve the dad was standing outside the front door telling them to "get her" enjoying the violence. I know Connie to be an extremely volatile person. I took many beatings from her growing up. I can imagine that if anyone is guilty of domestic violence it would be her, due to her emotional instability and her tendency towards aggression and violence.

I have known Connie to be a liar and a manipulator. It is a shame that trash like that can obtain sympathy from the so called "judges" while secretly smirking her devilish grin that she once again got away with something.

I have nothing to offer you other than my sympathy that you became a Victim of the Con. It saddens me to read of your situation, and I wish I could help. If only to lend an ear. Feel free to write me.

Sincerely,

Billie Jo Hellen
